Fenway Park~Where History and Excitement Provide Family Fun

HAYWOOD SULLIVAN

"BUDDY" LeROUX

Administration

Welcome to Fenway Park. Red Sox fans everywhere have grown accustomed to exciting baseball in a family atmosphere when they come to Fenway Park, and we hope you enjoy your visit to one of baseball's greatest showcases.

The Red Sox tradition is now in its 81st year, although the nickname wasn't adopted until 1907 and the park wasn't opened until 1912. Until then the games were played at the Huntington Ave. grounds where Northeastern U. now stands. But the Red Sox were one of the new league's premier teams in the early 1900's and the tradition started at that time.

Built in 1912 and reconstructed in 1934 by the late Tom Yawkey, the playing field is virtually the same today as it was over 40 years ago. Yet each year the Red Sox continue to make improvements and renovations that will enable the tremendous crowds that attend our games to enjoy baseball in an attractive setting.

In the last 14 years over 25.6 million fans have watched the Red Sox in Fenway Park. During that span (1967-80) the Red Sox have been the only major league team to have a winning record every single season. The dramatics of the 1967 and 1975 American League championship seasons and the many outstanding players who have performed here, have combined to maintain the rich tradition of the Red Sox and Fenway Park.

Fans across the U.S. have seen on television why Fenway Park is such a great place to watch a game. The famous "Green Monster" wall in left field, the unique angles and corners around the field and the closeness of the crowd to the action are reasons why Fenway Park is such a captivating place.

After the 1975 season the left field wall was rebuilt, padding was installed to protect the outfielders and the center-field message board was constructed.

Composed of 8,640 40-watt light bulbs, the board is considered among the finest in baseball with its ability to bring extra enjoyment to fans with statistics, information and replays.

The Diagram on page 53 shows the location of all Fenway Park facilities and the maps on page 13 show the various methods and routes leading to Fenway. We thank Red Sox fans everywhere, especially those in New England, for their tremendous support.

The Manager

RALPH HOUK

Age: 61, Turns 62 Aug. 9; Born: August 9, 1919, Lawrence, Kan. Ht.: 5-11; Wt.: 190 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Pompano Beach, Fla. Married Bette Porter. Children: Donna 11/22/41, Richard 2/28/43, Robert 8/24/49.

On Oct. 27, 1980 Houk was named the 35th manager of the Red Sox, ending a two-year retirement. Ralph previously managed 16 years in the A.L. with the Yankees and Tigers. In addition to being a winning manager (1307-1249 .511) he is also credited with the ability to develop young players. Houk succeeded Casey Stengel as Yankee manager in 1961 and directed N.Y. to three straight pennants and two World Championships (1961-62). Those feats resulted in such honors as Major League Manager of the Year by The Sporting News in 1961 and managing the A.L. All Star team in 1962-63. He spent two years as Yankee Vice-Pres. and Gen. Manager before moving back as manager May 7, 1966 replacing Johnny Keane. He was named A.L. Manager of the Year in 1970.

Ralph left N.Y. after 1973 to become manager of the Tigers for the next five years. He announced his retirement after guiding the young Tigers to an 86-76 record in 1978 and spent the last two years in Pompano Beach. With the retirement of Gene Mauch, Houk is the senior manager in point of service in the major leagues and second senior in age to Bobby Mattick of Toronto.

Houk played in the Yankee organization as a catcher, 1939-54, with four years (1942-45) out for military duty with the Rangers of the 9th Armored Div. in Europe in WW II. He rose from private to major, saw action at Bastogne and The Bulge and was awarded the Silver Star, Purple Heart and Bronze Star.

Age: 40; Born: October 14, 1940, Oak Grove, La. Ht.: 5-9; Wt.: 160 lbs. Brown eyes, Black hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Stoughton, Mass. Married Bonnie Jean Williams.

Tommy is coaching first base for the second year, as well as being the club's base-running instructor. After a 15-year major league career with Cincinnati, Cleveland, the Seattle Pilots, Milwaukee, the Red Sox, California, Oakland and Baltimore, he was a scout and minor league coach for the Yankees before joining the Red Sox public relations staff in 1978.

He started his career with the Reds at the end of the 1962 season and finished with the Orioles in 1976. In 1810 games Harper hit .257 with 146 home runs and 408 stolen bases. In 1970 he hit 31 home runs and stole 38 bases for Milwaukee, a feat accomplished by Bobby Bonds, Willie Mays, Henry Aaron and Ken Williams. He hit 6 homers that year as leadoff batter, to tie for the A.L. record with Eddie Joost (1948), Eddie Yost (1959) and Bert Campaneris (1970). In 1965 he led the N.L. in runs (126) for the Reds and in 1969 he led the A.L. with 73 stolen bases for the Pilots. He played for the Red Sox in 1972-74 and was the team's MVP in 1973 when he led the A.L. with a club-record 54 SB's, scored 92 runs and hit 17 homers.

Harper starred in three sports at Encinal H.S. and Santa Rosa College and hit .507 at San Francisco State before signing with the Reds. He was the MVP of the Three-I League in 1961 and played 1B-2B-3B-OF in the majors. In the off-season Tommy sells advertising for the public relations office.

JOHN MICHAEL PESKY (Johnny)

Age: 61, Turns 62 Sept. 27; Born: September 27, 1919, Portland, Ore. Ht.: 5-9; Wt.: 170 lbs. Brown eyes, Brown hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: Swampscott, Mass. Married Ruth Hickey. Children: David 12/19/52.

In Johnny's long career in baseball he has worked in almost every phase of the game as a player, coach, manager, radio-TV announcer and advertising salesman. He spent five years as Red Sox first base coach before assisting Don Zimmer in the dugout in 1980 while continuing to be the team's hitting instructor. He will have the same role in 1981 with Ralph Houk. He's a long-time favorite of Red Sox fans and is one of the most sought-after members of the team on the public appearance circuit.

Johnny was an outstanding shortstop, third baseman and all-around hitter. He holds the Red Sox records for most hits by a rookie (205) and most singles in a season (172) and hit over .300 six times in his major league career. He was the first Red Sox player to have three 200-hit years (Jim Rice is the 2nd). After 10 years with Boston, Detroit and Washington, Pesky coached under Ralph Houk in Denver in 1955 and managed in the Detroit farm system from 1956 through 1960. In the mid-1960's he was a coach for the Pirates and a manager in their system before joining the Red Sox broadcast crew in 1969. He spent six years as part of the radio and television team. He also managed Seattle for the Red Sox in 1961-62 before moving up to the parent Boston team in 1963-64. He's tied for the M.L. record in leading a league in hits 3 straight years.

ALBERT LEE (LEE, STINGER) STANGE

Age: 44; Born: October 27, 1936, Chicago, Ill. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 170 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Fountain Valley, Calif. Married June. Children: Tim 9/3/64, Jim 3/21/67, Jana 5/15/68, Jennifer 9/25/66, Christopher 11/1/67.

Stange returns as pitching coach following a six-year absence. He was named to the position by Ralph Houk in November, after being a minor league pitching instructor for the Red Sox in 1980 on the Triple A and Double A levels, and serving as a West Coast scout.

"Stinger" ended a 10-year major league career in 1970 and was the Red Sox minor league pitching coach in 1971 before moving up to the club's major league staff in 1972-74. He held the same position with the Twins in 1975 and then joined the Oakland organization in 1976 as a minor league instructor. He was the A's pitching coach 1977-79 and helped develop the young pitching staff that became one of the A.L.'s best in 1980.

Stange had a 62-61 major league record with the Twins, Indians, Red Sox and White Sox. He came to Boston 6/2/66 from the Indians with pitcher Don McMahon for Dick Radatz. He was 8-10 with a 2.77 ERA (best on the team) during the 1967 pennant-winning season and the Sox best reliever in 1968 with 5 wins and 11 saves in 50 games. On 6/29/70 he was sold to the White Sox. "Stinger" was All State in baseball and All Chicago in basketball at Proviso Township H.S. He was also a football quarterback and teammate of former NFL star Ray Nitschke, and went to Drake U. on a football scholarship. On 9/2/64 he tied the M.L. record of 4 strikeouts in one inning for the Indians.

WALTER JOHN HRINIAK (Walt)

Age: 37, Turns 38 May 22; Born: May 22, 1943, Natick, Mass. Ht.: 5-11; Wt.: 178 lbs. Green eyes, Blond hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: Natick, Mass.

There are few, if any, harder workers in baseball than Hriniak. He's back for the fifth year as bullpen coach and one of the best batting practice pitchers in the game. Walter is a keen student of strategy and hitting techniques and has an abundance of energy and enthusiasm.

Before joining the Red Sox in 1977 Hriniak put in 16 years as a player, coach and minor league manager. He managed Montreal's rookie team at Lethbridge, Alb., Can. in the Pioneer League in 1976 after starting the year as a coach with Denver. In 1974-75 he was first base coach with the Expos, following two years as manager of their Jamestown team in the NYP League.

Hriniak signed a reported $50,000 contract with the Milwaukee Braves in 1961 after an outstanding career at Natick, Mass. H.S. He was an All Scholastic choice as a shortstop, football quarterback and hockey center. His 13-year pro playing career included two years with the Braves and Padres as a catcher in 1968-69.

EDWARD FRED J. YOST (Eddie)

Age: 54; Born: October 13, 1926, Brooklyn, N.Y. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 180 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Hauppauge, N.Y. Married Pat Healy. Children: Felita 1/13/62, Michael 11/12/63, Alexis 5/3/65.

Third base is one of the most important coaching positions and Eddie is recognized among the best in baseball at his job. Now in his fifth year with the Red Sox Yost has continually demonstrated the quick thinking and thorough knowledge of the opposition's strengths and weaknesses that are the necessary ingredients for successfully coaching at third base. After ending his playing career in 1962 he became a coach for the Washington Senators, 1963-67, and New York Mets, 1968-1976. He was with the Mets in the 1969 and 1973 World Series.

"The Walking Man," as he was known during his 17-year major league career, was an outstanding third baseman and leadoff hitter. He came from the campus of New York U. to the Senators in 1944 and went on to set several records for third basemen. He led the A.L. six times in walks, had over 100 walks eight times, scored over 100 runs five times and twice led the league in fielding. He still holds the A.L. record of 28 home runs as leadoff batter.

He was traded from Washington to Detroit in Dec. of 1958 and was selected by the Angels in baseball's first expansion draft, Dec. 14, 1960. When Yost retired after the 1962 season he held the major league record for most games at third base (2,008) and the A.L. marks for putouts (2,356), assists (3,659) and chances (6,015). He was selected for the A.L. All Star team in 1952 but did not play. He has a Master's Degree in Physical Education from N.Y.U.

ROUTE ONE, SAUGUS

This Could Be His Year

By Joe Giuliotti

For years every time there was a Red Sox trade rumor, the name Dwight Evans was mentioned.

He had come to the Red Sox as a 20-year-old rookie of great promise in 1972, quickly established himself as one of the better defensive outfielders in the league but never was the hitter people felt he would be.

As a result, in the hitting-conscious environment of New England, Evans was always the one designated to go when the trade winds annually came up.

Today, there's nobody talking trade for Dwight Evans. He's off to his best start in the big leagues and was one of the pleasant notes on the club when it had early-season problems.

After the first month of the season he was leading the league in hitting and on-base percentage, had seven home runs and 20 RBI and ranked near the top in several other offensive categories.

Evans' start may be a surprise to some but not to him, and shouldn't be to those who follow the team with a sharp eye.

He's merely picking up where he left off last year when he batted .317 with 13 home runs and 38 RBI over the final half of the season.

The change in Evans began just prior to the All Star break last year. He was struggling along with a .192 average, was confused at the plate and had no idea how to solve the problem.

"I knew I was terrible," Evans recalled. "And, you know how it is when you're going bad. Nobody wants to talk to you. They wish you well but nobody wants to come up to you because you are going bad."

Just when things looked their worst, coach Walter Hriniak approached Evans and offered to help. "It was just before the All Star break when Walter came to me and he's stuck by me through thick and thin ever since," Evans said.

"This guy came to me and told me he wanted to do something for me. He told me if I wanted his help he'd stick by me but said I would have to stick by him. Don't quit on me and I won't quit on you," he said.

Evans welcomed the help and almost immediately his game changed around. "Walter taught me how to relax, how to try and go up the middle or to right with the pitch.

"He's had a lot to do with my hitting. Sure I'm doing it, but he's the one who got me going. He taught me the new stance, showed me how to relax and I owe him a lot."

Once Evans started hitting, it wasn't the end of his daily talks with and lessons from Hriniaik. "He stays right on top of me. If he sees me doing something wrong, he's right on me. Before every game we talk and he asks me what I'm trying to do in that particular game. I can't say enough about him," Evans went on.

Evans' name does not appear on this year's All Star ballot as it has many times in the past. One month isn't much of a yardstick, but he certainly has given more than all All Star performance and, should he continue, he would almost have to be chosen to the mid-season club for the second time in his career.

With some members of the team mired in slumps, Evans has been like the light at the end of the tunnel. It was his two-run, eighth inning home run in Kansas City that won a game, 2-1.

He kept on hitting in Toronto, knocking in five runs in a 10-3 victory and, the following day, threw a runner out at the plate to preserve an eighth inning tie in a game the Sox went on to win in the 10th, with Evans scoring the game-winning run.

A Continuing Series

With GEORGE SULLIVAN

A former Boston sports columnist, GEORGE SULLIVAN has been writing about the Red Sox for more than 25 years. His best-selling "Picture History of the Boston Red Sox" (Bobbs-Merrill) is now available in softcover.

Bill Monbouquette

Red Sox pitcher, 1958-65
Wore No. 27

Then: Bill Monbouquette is a local boy who made good with the Red Sox. He signed with them upon 1955 graduation from Medford High School, where he was a baseball All-Scholastic and also played hockey, soccer and basketball. Three summers later, Monbo was pitching at Fenway Park, where he would star the next 7½ seasons.

From 1958-65 the 5-11, 190-pound right-hander inscribed his name in the Red Sox record book. Most notably, he (1) set the club's one-game strikeout mark, fanning 17 one night in 1961 at Washington to top by one Smoky Joe Wood's record which had stood 50 years, (2) hurled a no-hitter in 1962, one of only 14 ever by a Red Sox pitcher, and (3) spun two of the 16 one-hitters notched by Sox pitchers since 1950.

In all, Monbouquette compiled a 96-91 record despite pitching for a perennial second-division club all his seven full seasons in Boston. For a 6½-year span he didn't miss a start, a durable mainstay who now ranks fourth on the Red Sox' all-time list for strikeouts (969), starts (228) and innings (1,622). He's also tied for seventh in victories (96) and tied for 10th in shutouts (16).

A fiery, intense competitor with a smoking fastball and precision control, Monbo went on to pitch three more seasons with the Tigers, Yankees and Giants to finish 114-112 and 3.68 ERA lifetime.

Now: Approaching his 45th birthday in August, Monbouquette is the Mets' minor-league pitching coach, circulating among the six teams in that organization. He's been coaching and managing six years in the Met's system following a six-season hitch with the Yankees as a scout and minor-league manager.

Bill and his wife Pat reside in New Boston, N.H., near Manchester, with their three sons: Marc, 15, Michel, 13, and Merric, 11.

Quotes: "The no-hitter was the biggest thrill of my career.

"Funny, I hadn't been pitching well, really struggling. I'd gone almost two months — 54 days, I believe — since my last victory. I'd been taking my regular turn in the rotation all that time but just couldn't buy a win.

How come George Brett won The Seagram's Seven Crowns of Sports Award

when no one voted for him?

Because The Seagram's Seven Crowns of Sports has no panel of judges, there's no voting. And it's not simply a matter of scores. Nor is it a popularity contest.

So how does it work?

First, a panel of sports experts helps to identify the critical aspects of play for each of seven great spectator sports. Aspects such as consistency. Performance under pressure. Playing time. Position responsibilities. Offensive and defensive effectiveness. Then, no one votes! Instead, these and many other variables are assigned Performance Standard Points by mathematicians at an impartial sports bureau. Finally, a computer – not a jury – converts the points into an overall Productivity Efficiency Rating for each athlete. This system allows for a uniquely fair and objective comparison of athletes. At last, we can compare a relief pitcher to a starter. An outfielder to a shortstop. A rookie to a star.

The result? The most accurate system ever devised to measure overall athletic performance. And one that's so fair that coaches, owners, player associations, the press and players all agree that The Seagram's Seven Crowns of Sports Award is one of the hardest to win.

So when George Brett won in 1980, he was especially honored to receive the award that's fast becoming one of the most valued and respected awards in pro sports.

To learn more about how this fascinating award is computed for baseball, football, basketball, hockey, tennis, golf and horseracing, write: The Seagram's Seven Crowns of Sports Award, Seagram's Seven Crown, 375 Park Avenue, N.Y., N.Y. 10152.

"Well, I finally got one, and it was unforgettable — 1-0 over Early Wynn. And that was a good-hitting Chicago team, too — Minoso, Aparicio, Fox, Landis. But we scored the game's only run in the eighth when Lu Clinton singled home Jim Pagliaroni from second base.

"I'll never forget the ninth inning. I struck out Sherm Lollar, got Fox to ground out, then struck out Aparicio on four pitches.

"The two one-hitters were special, too, and I lost one of them. That was at Minnesota in '64. I had a perfect game with two out in the sixth and missed getting the third out on an error. I then had Zorro Versalles 0-2, and he kept fouling off pitches before he caught one flush and homered, and we lost, 2-1.

"The other one-hitter — against Detroit at Fenway in '60 — wasn't even close. In the very first inning Neil Chrisley popped a wind-blown double that barely scraped the left-field wall. That was the only hit they got, but because it happened so early there wasn't pressure.

"Yes, the 17-strikeout game at Washington was a thrill, too. And do you know I almost lost that game? I was pitching against Pete Burnside and we were leading, 2-1, in the ninth. But with two out the Senators had runners on first and second on an error and a hit, and Danny O'Connell was up. He was one of three batters I didn't strike out that night — O'Connell, Gene Woodling and Billy Klaus, I believe. I struck out Willie Tasby four times.

"O'Connell hit a ball to right field that Jackie Jensen broke in for, then raced back and made a heck of a catch. If he hadn't, with everybody running, it would have been all over — a loss despite 17 strikeouts. And I almost had 18, but a third-strike foul tip went in and out of Pag's mitt late in the game, in the eighth inning, I think.

"Being selected to start the '60 All-Star Game at Kansas City was another thrill, even though I didn't do too well. Ernie Banks and Del Crandall homered off me as I gave up four or five runs in three innings.

"KC also is where I won my 20th victory in '63, beating the A's with Dick Radatz picking up the save. And do you know who the opposing starting pitcher was that night? Satchel Paige. He came back for one game — at what, age 59? He pitched three scoreless innings, and Yaz got the only hit off him. And Satch struck out one — me.

"No, Mickey Mantle usually wasn't a problem for me. I had good success with him — and generally pitched well against the Yankees overall. I guess every pitcher has a club he does well against, and mine was the Yankees."

ALL IN THE FAMILY

Stan Grosshandler

The most successful family has been the Sislers. Hall of Famer George, often called the ideal first baseman, managed the St. Louis Browns and had two of his boys make the big leagues. Dick, a top notch outfielder in the National League for eight seasons, had a brief term at managing the Reds, and is best recalled for his dramatic home-run that won the 1950 pennant for the Philadelphia "Whiz Kids". Dave Sisler pitched seven seasons in the American League.

Other members of the Hall of Fame who have had offspring make the Big Time have been Eddie Collins, Yogi Berra, "Orator John" O'Rourke, Earl Averill, Fred Lindstrom, and Ed Walsh. Collins, Berra, and O'Rourke also were managers. Sons of former players that have become managers are Joe Schultz, Johnny Cooney, and Harry Walker.

Ewart Walker, a pitcher of moderate success, sent two N.L. batting champions to the majors in sons Dixie and Harry. They are the only brother combination to have accomplished this feat. Jimmy Cooney also had two of his boys play in the National League. Jimmy Jr., a shortstop, is the owner of an unassisted triple play; while Johnny, had a long career as both a pitcher and outfielder.

When Maury Wills took over as manager of the Seattle Mariners, the Wills family became the second family in the history of major league baseball to have a father managing while his son was an active player. Son Bump, like his dad a switch hitting infielder, is with the Rangers. But it was the first time a father had managed against his son in a game.

It has been 70 years since Earle Mack caught one game for his father, Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics. Earle played a total of five games over a three year period for the A's then remained as a coach for many years.

There have been a total of 89 father-son combinations to have played major league baseball. Of these, five other fathers have been managers; while on four occasions the sons have become pilots. One such instance is present Blue Jay manager Bobby Mattick. Bobby was an infielder for the Cubs; while his pop was an outfielder with the White Sox.

RALPH HOUK

By BOB FINNIGAN

In the days immediately following his agreement to manage the Red Sox last October, Ralph Houk learned what it means to be entering the traditional Boston-New York feud from the other side. On the morning after Haywood Sullivan's now-famous flying visit, Houk piled some pals on his boat from a fishing trip to the Florida Keys—and nothing went right.

It was windy every day. The fishing was terrible. "We went thinking we might catch a dolphin or a sailfish," he recalled. "We hardly caught enough fish to eat. So we tried bottom fishing and didn't do any better." The worst was yet to come. Houk was piloting his boat out of Miami Harbor when the group saw a boat aground on a reef. "They were taking the people off and we all watched and I missed a channel marker. Next thing, we were aground too. We hit rock bottom and tore the props all up."

What other kind of luck could a Red Sox manager expect on a boat named 'Thanks Yanks'? Boston general manager Haywood Sullivan keeps telling him to change the name, or get a new boat. "If you win the pennant, we'll get you a bigger one. So big you won't be able to turn it around in the channel."

It is recognized that the press and the fans make the Boston managing job the toughest in baseball. Indeed, Houk is the sixth Red Sox manager in 16 years, but even with their past winter of change the Red Sox are far from his toughest assignment.

"Don't forget, I took over the New York Yankees in 1961 after Casey Stengel left," Houk said. "All Casey did was win—10 pennants in 13 years. Nothing could be a harder act to follow."

"Then I took over the Tigers in 1974 and had to replace their stars and he-

"I believe in fundamentals. You won't see me using any trick plays. I play the game as it has been played for years. I don't know any other way."

roes with younger people. That was tough. When I replaced Willie Horton with Steve Kemp I thought they were going to kill me. Now Kemp makes $600,000 a year."

His move from the Yankees to the Tigers in the winter of '73-'74 is a clue to why, along with the timing, he said 'yes' to the Red Sox after two years in retirement saying 'no' then 'maybe' to other teams. He had spent his entire career with the Yankees, starting in 1939, but chafed under the interference of George Steinbrenner, who bought the team in 1972. Moving to Detroit, under general manager Jim Campbell, he found what he had come to miss in New York—freedom to run the team. He expects the same here, under Sullivan, who says he has it.

"It's easier and more pleasant for a manager to work with real baseball people," Houk says. "They understand."

Sullivan and Houk reached a complete understanding in the first quarter-hour of the 2½-hour meeting at Fort Lauderdale Airport. The first thing Sullivan told him was that he might be managing without Fred Lynn in center, Rick Burleson at short or Carlton Fisk behind the plate. "We may lose them," Sullivan said, "and I don't want you coming here with your eyes closed." This up-frontness impressed Houk, but the news didn't faze him. "To tell you the truth," he says, "I was so excited about getting back into things that I didn't give it much thought. I knew that there would be enough talent left for a solid team."

The contractual formalities were even shorter. Sullivan asked Houk what he wanted. Houk told him. They agreed to a two-year contract. "I didn't get into this for the money," Houk says. "I wanted more than one year, but I didn't want to get tied up in any long-term deal. I think two years is fair to me and fair to the players. It will give us a chance to get something going in Boston."

What was it that brought Houk's name out of Sullivan's hat? What about the man, at age 61, the senior manager in the game in terms of service, that led Sullivan to the sudden dark-of-night meeting in a Florida airport?

"I originally had a list of 30 or 40 names, people in our organization and outside, in the majors and out," the Boston GM recalls. "But I was looking for a certain one. Our team, our organization needs the right man now more than ever. I called around and got ideas and recommendations and again and again Ralph Houk's name came up."

What the Red Sox sought was a man who could hold the respect of the veterans without aweing the youngsters. "We needed a man who could handle and develop pitchers," Sullivan said. "It was our biggest need."

"I don't play any favorites and I think that's one reason I have a good reputation. I respect the players and I think they respect me. But if anyone fouls up, I'll talk to them. Anyone. Everyone is equal in my eyes."

The Red Sox are in the middle of a directional shift. For the first time in elders' memory, pitching is no longer an afterthought, no longer secondary to an everyday lineup that could bash the ball around and out of little Fenway Park. No one can remember better prospective pitching than is now in the Boston system.

The Red Sox needed a man to guide this change. "But we also needed a man with stature, someone to project a certain image in the community and with the press," Sullivan says. "What the hell, we also needed a captain, someone who could lead our team."

"We needed discipline, and Ralph's reputation in that area is well known. We needed a man who had handled winners and also dealt with adversity. When we added up our requirements, when we had it all set out, we found we needed Ralph Houk."

Houk plays down his discipline reputation. They don't call him The Major anymore and he would prefer they don't. He wants his players to run themselves and any time he feels they are not, he calls them into his office for what he calls "constructive criticism."

"I don't have a whole lot of rules," he says. "In fact, those we have I let the players set up. I believe fining a man hurts his family more than him, and that's the way I feel about criticizing a man in public or in the press. That comes back to him at home from his wife or parents and it's likely to be on his mind when he comes to the park."

"What I want when a man comes to the park is all baseball. Nothing but baseball."

It is this area where The Major of old comes through. Houk does not accept the belief that players are not as dedicated as they used to be. "They have ability and if they didn't want to win they wouldn't be wearing the uniform," he says. "If I detect anything else in their attitude I'll give them some constructive criticism."

Houk sees his part in all this is to get the players thinking with him. When players get to the park, and not too early, he reminds, he wants them thinking of nothing but ways to beat the other team that night. "Would you believe I've been in clubhouses where a guy goes on the field asking who is Houk and Coach Johnny Pesky.

pitching for the other team that night? I won't have that. We have meetings before and after series. And I'd like to see players going over boxscores of teams we are playing next. It helps to know who's hot and who isn't.

"I want a winning attitude. I want to see happy winners, and unhappy losers. I want to see Red Sox who are just as excited about moving a runner over as getting a hit. I want to see team performance regarded over individual performance. I want a winner in Boston."

If he gets his winner, will he hold Sullivan to the promise of the new, bigger boat? "Hell, yes," Houk laughs. "I'll think of a name later."

It's Easy to Keep Score

Baseball Shorthand, as used by the news media to render every game more enjoyable to baseball enthusiasts. All players are numbered and all plays recorded by symbols. For symbols and example of system, see below.

CODE NUMBER OF PLAYERS AS FOLLOWS

Pitcher	1	Second Baseman	4	Left Fielder	7
Catcher	2	Third Baseman	5	Center Fielder	8
First Baseman	3	Shortstop	6	Right Fielder	9

SYMBOLS FOR PLAYS

Single	—	Fielder's Choice	FC	Passed Ball	PB
Double	==	Hit by Pitcher	HP	Balk	BK
Triple	===	Wild Pitch	WP	Struck Out	K
Home Run	====	Stolen Base	SB	Base on Balls	BB
Reached base on error	E	Sacrifice	SAC	Force Out	FO

The lower lefthand corner of the scoring block should be considered as home plate. Progress is counter-clockwise with progress to first base indicated in lower righthand corner, to second in upper righthand corner, to third in upper lefthand corner and to home in lower left. In example to left, batter reached first on an error by the second baseman, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball. It is convenient to encircle all runs as shown so that scoring plays may be seen at a glance.

RED SOX RADIO

The team for the WITS Red Sox radio network is nothing if not varied in its experience and expertise behind the mike. Ken Coleman and Jon Miller are in their second year together.

Coleman, of course, is a long-time Boston favorite who has had more than 30 years of broadcasting experience. Miller, who joined Kenny last season, is only 28 years old, but the Californian has been on radio since he was in high school. He came to the Sox last year from the Texas Rangers.

The executive director of The Jimmy Fund, Coleman has been with the Red Sox for 10 years on radio and TV, after 10 years with the Cleveland Indians, 14 years with the Cleveland Browns on TV, two years of NBC football, five years of Harvard football and play-by-play of seven NFL championship games.

He has won 12 AFTRA awards for broadcasting excellence, spent four years announcing for the Cincinnati Reds on TV and was the voice of Ohio State football, among many other credits.

Miller, resident wit and mimic, brings fun to Sox baseball with his uncanny imitations of sporting figures and other announcers. He and Coleman had met before, briefly, when both were applicants for the Reds TV job, winding up as finalists. Coleman got that job, but recommended Jon to be his partner in Boston.

After working in radio at San Mateo College (Cal.), Miller worked in TV at a station in Santa Rosa, Cal., and then went to pro hockey from there as the youngest play-by-play announcer in the history of the National Hockey League, working for Charlie Finley with the Oakland Golden Seals.

Miller also spent one year with the Oakland A's baseball team, then did basketball as the voice of the San Francisco Dons, and soccer on the TV network with the San Jose Earthquakes of the North American Soccer League. From there it was on to the Rangers, and eventually, to Boston.

RED SOX TV

Ned Martin and Ken Harrelson

"The Rooster" and "The Hawk" are in the TV booth again this year for the telecast of Red Sox games by Channel 38 (WSBK-TV). This is the seventh straight year that WSBK will provide Sox games for the fans, and it is the seventh year for "The Hawk," Ken Harrelson, while "The Rooster," Ned Martin, will be teaming with Ken for the third straight season.

Martin, now in his 21st year of radio and TV with the Red Sox, is one of the most popular broadcasters ever to make the New England scene. The Pennsylvanian, who began his career in Rockville, Md., paid his dues in the minors around a hitch in the Marine Corps and studies at Duke U. An easy, relaxed style has made him a favorite of the fans. His most explosive outburst is "Mercy," which has become somewhat of a trademark.

Harrelson, of course, is the more flamboyant of the two, with his "Hawk Hats" and his colorful phrasing, which is backed by a solid knowledge of baseball. Hawk played major league ball with Washington, Kansas City, Boston ("Impossible Dream"), and Cleveland. He helped the Sox to the 1967 pennant and led the American League in 1968 with 109 RBI and 35 home runs.

A native of Savannah, Ga., Harrelson has been an all-around athlete since his youth, and is an accomplished golfer, pool player and sometime arm wrestler. He tried the PGA Tour for several winters, although he fell just short of getting his playing card. Last fall he was the sensation of the Pleasant Valley Classic, a Tour tournament in Sutton, where his colorful style drew large crowds, and his golf game was good enough for him to make the cut and be in contention at the half-way mark.

Knowledge, style and easy-going manners mark this pair of top-flight announcers.

ALKA-SELTZER® AMERICA'S HOME REMEDY.

NOTHING WORKS BETTER, NOTHING IS MORE SOOTHING.

On any given night, in any given town, someone in America is waking up with an upset stomach and an aching head.

Groping in the dark, they make their way to the medicine chest. And there between the cotton balls and the bandages they reach for America's home remedy. Alka-Seltzer.

They know Alka-Seltzer is effective. And they're comforted in knowing it's gentle, too. As they shuffle back to bed, they also know Alka-Seltzer will bring relief quickly. Just like it did last time.

So make sure America's Home Remedy is in your home. Because someday you'll be very relieved to find it there.

ALL IN THE FAMILY

JIM BAGBY JR.

Two other families have been represented by a father and two sons, the Larry Gilbert and Sam Hairston families. When Sam's son John played with the Cubs he became the first son of a black ball player to follow in his father's footsteps to the major leagues. The sons of two ex-ball players were members of the Phillies in the 1980 World Series. Bob Boone's dad had been a member of the 1948 Indians when they played in the Series; while Del Unser's dad had a brief major league career during World War II.

Besides the Boones five other father-son combinations have been in the World Series. The Hegans are the only family to have participated in two. Jim, a great catcher, was with Cleveland in both the '48 and '52 classics; while his son, Mike, played for the Yankees in '64 and the A's in 1972.

Billy Sullivan was behind the bat when the famous Chicago White Sox "Hitless Wonders" upset the Cubs in the 1906 Series. Billy Jr. caught for the championship 1940 Detroit Tiger team.

Both Jim Bagby Sr. and Jim Jr. pitched in a Series. Sr. became the first pitcher to hit a home run in a Series when he crashed a fourbase blow for Cleveland in the fifth game of the 1920 Series; while Jim Jr. was on the mound for the Red Sox in 1946. Ernie Johnson was an infielder for the Yankees in the '23 event; and son Don was at second base for the 1945 Cubs.

The great Brooklyn Dodgers slugger Dolph Camilli played in the 1941 classic; while son Doug, a member of the 1963 L.A. Dodgers, was eligible but did not play in the Series that fall. Gene Moore was an outfielder for the St. Louis Browns in their only Series; while his pop, Gene Sr., was a member of the Pirates but did not get to play in the 1909 event.

Both Charles F. Berry and Joseph H. Berry had fathers who played both major league baseball and football. Charles elected to follow in the steps of dad by playing both sports too. An All-American end at Lafayette College Charlie Berry was chosen to the last Walter Camp All-American team. He played several games in the National Football League and was the leading scorer one year. He also caught for many years in the American League and then coached. Charlie was not content with playing both sports so he became an official. He officiated for the American League in several World Series and in NFL title games. In 1958 he handled the World Series and then officiated in the famous Colt-Giant Sudden Death Game. He is the only man to have officiated in these two major events in sports.

Present players, beside Boone, Unser, and Wills, whose fathers preceeded them to the major leagues are Charles Beamon, Buddy Bell, Dale Berra, Ross Grimsley, Terry Kennedy, Mathew Keough, Vern Law, Jerry Martin, Milt May, Allen Ripley, Roy Smalley, and Steve Trout.

This article was written exclusively for Major League Baseball by the Society for American Baseball Research (SABR).

Official Umpire Signals

Spectator Interference — batter, runner and other runner(s) will be placed at the base(s) which the umpires feel they would have reached with no interference.

Time — ball is dead, play suspended. This sign used when ball is foul, umpire then pointing to foul territory.

Batted Balls Hit Fair or Foul — if fair, umpire points to fair territory — if foul he raises arms overhead (as in "Time" above) and then turns and points to foul territory, and vocally calls "foul."

Awarding of Bases — this shows umpire designating base or bases awarded by overthrow or ground rule double.

Home Run — circular motion of umpire's arm denotes home run.

Safe — both arms parallel to ground indicates runner is safe.

Out — right arm extended out and up indicates runner is out.

Balls and Strikes — umpire makes no arm movement if he judges pitch a ball; if he judges the pitch a strike he uses an exaggerated movement of his right arm.

Pete Daley #8

Fifty years ago Red Sox players started wearing numbers on their uniforms. They've worn almost every number from 1 to 55 plus some that go as high as 81 and 82. Five years of research by Ben Ells of E. Weymouth, Mass. has resulted in almost a complete list of who wore what numbers during each season. But Ells, a member of the Society for American Baseball Research (SABR), has run into a few roadblocks because all of the numbers worn by an individual are not known.

Some of those he's been unable to pinpoint include: veteran outfielder Jim Landis, who played in five games with the Red Sox in late August of 1967; pitcher Gary Wagner, catcher Carlton Fisk and first baseman Tony Muser in 1969; pitchers Chet Nichols, Tracy Stallard and Arnold Earley in 1960; pitcher Jerry Casale in 1958; second baseman Milt Bolling and outfielders Al Zarilla and Charlie Maxwell in 1952; and pitcher Chuck Stobbs in 1947.

But Ells has found most of them and we've selected some of the more interesting Red Sox numbers and some of the players who wore them in the accompanying boxes.

Birdie Tebbetts #8

Ike Delock #14 Carl Yastrzemski #8

Sam Mele wore both #4 & #14

That was a case of when "you're going good nothing goes wrong." He had led the inning by striking out only to reach base when the ball bounced past the catcher and scored on a two-out single by Carney Lansford.

Evans will be the first to admit that he played eight years in the big leagues not really knowing what he was doing at the plate. "It's fair to say that I didn't. I was relying on my natural ability but not knowing what I was doing.

"When Walter finally showed me how to hit and I began to realize what I was doing at the plate I stayed with it. I stayed with it the second half of last year, I stayed with it in spring training, I stayed with it when the season started and I probably will stay with it the rest of my career whether I hit .350 or .250," he said.

"Last year when I changed in mid-season, I finally felt something I had never felt before at the plate. I felt comfortable hitting," he said. "And when you've been looking for that feeling as long as I had you stick with it when you finally find it. I changed my stance every time I went into a little slump but I'm not changing anything the rest of my career. I know I'm going to have my slumps but I'm just going to approach the plate the same way every time.

"I used to worry but now every at bat, every game, is like starting from the beginning. I'm not worrying about what I did my last time at bat or what I did in my last game. Now all I'm thinking is what I'm going to do when I step in against that pitcher.

"All it takes is concentration and a guy like Walter brought it out of me. He not only made me a better hitter, he made me a better person.

"I've never been the ball player people thought I'd be and maybe I never will. But, right now, I'm getting the most out of myself and I have Walter to thank for that," he went on.

Manager Ralph Houk raised a few eyebrows during spring training when he announced Evans would bat either first, second or third in the order. "He had one of the best on-base percentages on the club last year and has power. And, there's nothing wrong with that leadoff guy hitting a home run and giving the team a one run lead right away," the manager said at the time.

"I love it," Evans said of his new positions in the order. "It's much better than batting ninth and I've hit there a few times in my career."

Another reason for Evans' quick start and his on-base percentage (he's among the league leaders in that department) is not so much the pitches he's swung at but rather the ones he's letting go.

He's not offering at the "pitchers pitch" — that tough breaking ball on the outside part of the plate. That was the type that was getting him out in the past. Now, he's waiting for his pitch.

After watching him for six games in 10 days in late April, his former manager Don Zimmer, said he was "the best hitter in the American League right now." Few would disagree.

After seeing him in spring training, Tony Kubek, the former New York Yankee shortstop now a color man for NBC's televised game of the week, said he had a chance to be the league's most valuable player.

"I'm not thinking about anything except to go out and play my game each day and try and contribute to help this club," Evans said. "I like this club. I think we're going to surprise people. Rice (Jim) and Perez (Tony) and Yaz (Carl Yastrzemski) haven't hit yet but you know they will. They're going to hit and this team is going to finish strong."

This could finally be the year people have been hoping for Evans to have at the plate. His best season was 1977 when he hit .287. But, he only played in 73 games because of an injured right knee which required surgery.

His career batting average is .262 but that was compiled when, by his admission, he had no idea of what to do at the plate. With the help from Hriniaak and the supreme confidence of the man, himself, this could be his year.

If you think you could pick your beer with your eyes closed, here's your chance.

Up for some real sport? Probably only one in three beer drinkers can pass this test.

Still game? Then grab a Schlitz and two other premium beers. (Make sure one is your favorite.)

Close your eyes, and have a friend pour each beer into separate cups. Now taste each one and tell your friend which premium beer is yours.

If you picked Schlitz instead of your regular, don't be surprised. A lot of beer drinkers do.

Two years ago a master brewer named Frank Sellinger came to Schlitz. He came to be president and to make the smoothest beer yet. One taste will tell you, this is it!

The Best Play-by-Play Combination in the Majors.

Nobody surpasses Ned Martin and Ken Harrelson when it comes to calling a baseball game. Especially in a big sports town like Boston--where the fans take their baseball very seriously.

Take Ned Martin, a top-notch broadcaster who's been associated with the Boston Red Sox for two decades. Ned catches the action almost before it happens. In New England, "The Rooster" is synonymous with the game itself.

And there's Ken Harrelson, the marvelously flamboyant former Red Sox MVP who'll relay candid insights at the drop of a hat. His "Hawk"-eye is always on the ball, on top of a pitch or behind a manager's strategy.

To complete the combination, there's TV 38's crack staff of professionals and facilities to offer Red Sox fans all over New England the best coverage in the major leagues.

The Ferrells, catcher Rick (left) and pitcher Wes, are the only brother battery in Red Sox history.

It's all relative:

Three sets of fathers and sons have played for the Red Sox: catcher Ed Connolly Sr. (1929-32) and pitcher Ed Connolly Jr. (1964), pitchers Smoky Joe Wood (1908-15) and Joe Wood (1944) and pitchers Walter Ripley (1935) and Allen Ripley (1978-79).

There has been one grandfather-grandson combination: Shano Collins (1921-25) and Robert Collins Gallagher (1972), both outfielders.

Nine sets of brothers have played for the Red Sox, the most famous being:

Conigliaro — Outfielders Tony (1964-67, 1969-70, 1975) and Billy (1969-71).

Ferrell — Pitcher Wes (1934-37) and catcher Rick (1933-37).

Stahl — Outfielder Chick (1901-06) and catcher-first baseman Jake (1903, 1908-10, 1912-13).

Others:

Sadowski — Catcher Eddie (1960) and pitcher Bob (1966).

Johnson — Outfielders Roy (1932-35) and Bob (1944-45).

Hughes — Pitchers Long Tom (1902-03) and Ed (1905-06).

Heving — Pitcher Joe (1938-40) and catcher Johnnie (1924-25, 1928-30).

Gaston — Catcher Alex (1926, 1929) and pitcher Milt (1929, 1931).

Carlyle — Outfielders Roy (1925-26) and Cleo (1927).

The Ferrells are the only brother battery in Red Sox history. And the Stahls are the only brothers who have managed the team, Chick in 1906, Jake in 1912 and 1913.

Where Are They Now?

"Being called up to the Red Sox in July 1958 and pitching my first major league game against Detroit at Fenway is another big memory. My parents were seeing me pitch professionally for the first time; so were my two brothers and two sisters. I was matched against Paul Foytack and went out in the fifth inning with the score tied, 5-5. What I remember most about that game was the embarrassment of Billy Martin stealing home on me.

"The toughest hitters for me? Bobby Richardson and Nellie Fox, a couple of guys with excellent bat control who didn't strike out much and poked the ball to all fields. Put Harvey Kuenn on that list, too; he used all the field, too, and was one of the best hitters I ever saw.

"Yogi Berra was tough, too; he always got a piece of the ball. And don't believe that business about him not being able to hit a ball in the strike zone; Yogi could hit the ball anywhere.

"And later in my career, when I'd lost a little of my fastball, Brooks Robinson became a problem for me.

"No, Mickey Mantle usually wasn't a problem for me. I had good success with him — and generally pitched well against the Yankees overall. I guess every pitcher has a club he does well against, and mine was the Yankees.

"Mantle was a switch hitter, of course, so he batted lefthanded against me. And batting from that side Mick was a low-ball hitter, while I was a high-ball pitcher.

"So Mantle didn't hit me too well, and it got to him a little. We were sitting together on a plane going from one All-Star Game to the other one season — there were two a year there for awhile, remember? — and Mick said, 'What gets me is that I can't hit you, you so-and-so, even though I know what you're going to throw me.'

"No, I didn't feel extra pressure performing in my hometown. I never thought of it in those terms. When I went out to pitch I put everything else out of my mind.

"Yes, there was a certain pressure pitching at Fenway, with its short left field. You knew you couldn't make a mistake there. What would be an easy out elsewhere can be a homer there, although it's also true that some line-drive singles off the wall would be homers in other parks.

"And the lack of foul territory, particularly down the lines, hurts. Foul territory can win a game or two a year for a pitcher.

"Overall, though, I believe Fenway makes you a better pitcher. You think more, you concentrate more.

"The same is true about pitching on a second-division team as I did here. It makes a better pitcher of you because you know you're not going to have a lot of runs to work with.

"You'll never know, of course, how much better your record would have been pitching for a contender all those years. For instance, my ERA against the White Sox in 1962 was 2.17, yet I was 0-6 against them. I allowed them six hits — five of them infield hits — in 13 innings one day and lost, 2-1, on a broken-bat single.

"But I have no regrets about all that.

"My biggest regret is that I should have been a better pitcher. I look back at games I should have won and didn't because I made a stupid mistake -- usually the mistake of trying to pitch too fine. Sometimes you try to nibble the corners — guiding the ball instead of throwing it. That's wrong; you should be going with your strength, with what God gave you.

"I also never had the thrill of being on a pennant winner.

"I've had a drink out of the Stanley Cup, though. I love hockey — I used to work out with the Bruins — and Gump Worsley is a close friend. The deciding game of the '66 Cup finals was in Detroit when I was there, and Gump (then Montreal's goalie) invited me. The Canadians won, and I drank out of the Cup with them. That was a thrill, and I wasn't even a part of it.

"So I still have that dream to be on a pennant-winner, in some capacity. Maybe some day."

"Overall, though, I believe Fenway makes you a better pitcher. You think more, you concentrate more."

Presenting the 1981½ Toyota Corolla Sports Hardtop. A totally new kind of Corolla from the roof down.

Fresh, crisp, contemporary lines. Distinctively subtle, yet the very latest in sporty good looks. The hardtop design gives you a wide-open, airy feeling. The spacious trunk allows you to lock valuables out of sight. And the roomy interior is loaded with the kinds of standard equipment you'd expect to pay extra for on most other cars.

But best of all, beneath that beautiful, sporty exterior, the Sports Hardtop is all Corolla. And it acts like one. It's incredibly dependable. Totally economical. And extremely thrifty.

With Corolla's 1.8 liter 4-cylinder engine and 5-speed overdrive transmission, the Sports Hardtop is rated at: 39 EPA EST. HWY. MPG, (28) EPA EST. MPG. Remember. Compare this estimate to the EPA "Estimated MPG" of other cars with manual transmission. You may get different mileage, depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions and trip length. Actual highway mileage will probably be less than the EPA "Highway Estimate."

The 1981½ Toyota Corolla Sports Hardtop. It's a whole new sport that's hard to top.
